Liquid Pipeline Transient Flow Analysis - Bentham Open Liquid pipelines often come across hydraulic transient due to various reasons. Hydraulic transient process often has high or low pressure, which damage pipeline and ancillary equipment when severe [1]. Therefore, it is necessary to calculate transient process which may occur during design and operation of the pipeline, in order to allow sufficient margin in design or control the effect of ... Analysis of hydraulic transients in pipeline networks ... [Abstract]: For most piping systems the maximum and minimum operating pressure occur during transient operations. Transient operations may result in column separation which refers to the breaking of liquid columns in fully filled pipelines. This may occur in a water hammer event when the pressure in a pipeline drops to the vapour pressure at ...
